54th Biennial CHEM SHOW Returns To New York City Leading Industry Event Celebrates 96th Anniversary

WESTPORT, Connecticut...May 17, 2010 – The 54th edition of the venerable CHEM SHOW will celebrate its 96th year as the chemical processing industry-leading event at New York City's Jacob K. Javits Convention Center, December 6-8, 2011.

Since its first event in New York City in 1915, the CHEM SHOW has become widely recognized as a valuable resource for CPI professionals where they can discover the latest products, trends and industry innovations. The 2009 Show attracted more than 7,000 attendees and exhibitors.

Following up on last year's successful event, next year's Show will feature a targeted focus on Sustainable and Green Process Solutions and include new enhancements to address the needs of both exhibiting companies and buyers.

The Show theme will concentrate on core processing areas as:

- Process Control and Automation Solutions
- Optimizing Process Efficiency
- Water/Wastewater Treatment
- Emerging Technologies
- Saving Energy

“The comprehensive conference program is designed to address a variety of topics to keep the CPI professional at the leading edge of industry trends and developments. In addition, such new and emerging technologies as nanotechnology will be addressed,” said Clay Stevens, president of International Exposition Company (IEC), which produces and manages The CHEM SHOW.

The 2011 Show will also feature enhancements of interest to buyers from all segments of the process industries including:

- Exhibitor Workshop Program
- Personalized Visitor Planner/Agenda
- New Products Showcase
- Expanded Partner Support

“The wealth of products and technologies on display, as well as our comprehensive conference program, provides CPI professionals with the insight and solutions they need to run their operations more efficiently,” Stevens added.
